

Ye Shall Know Them By Their Words...

Compare how often speakers from the different parties used select words and phrases at their respective 2012 presidential nominating conventions. On each axis is plotted the count per 25,000 words. Democrats had more to say about healthcare, military and women, while Republicans mentioned religion and governance more frequently:

